WWF is the world's largest and most experienced independent conservation organization. It has 4.7 million supporters and a global network active in 96 countries.

WWF's mission is to stop the degradation of the planet's natural environment and to build a future in which humans live in harmony with nature, by:

- conserving the world's biological diversity
- ensuring that the use of renewable natural resources is sustainable
- promoting the reduction of pollution and wasteful consumption.

About the authors:

This report was prepared by WWF International's Species Conservation Unit.

Lü Zhi, Associate Professor of Peking University, has been involved in field research on the giant panda and conservation projects in China since 1985. Between 1995 and 2000, she worked with WWF as its Panda Programme Coordinator, and is now a visiting scholar at Harvard University.

Elizabeth Kemf, Species Conservation Information Manager for WWF International, is editor and co-author of WWF's Species Status Reports.

Chief Reviewers: Yu Changqing, Jim Harkness, Li Ning, Stuart Chapman, Karen Baragona.

Picture research: Michèle Dépraz, WWF International Canon/Photolibary.
